Pittsburgh Ready Literacy Workshops with Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh are interactive learning experiences for parents, caregivers and educators. Participants gain and share practical tools to support children's reading readiness, learning and social-emotional development.

Educators can receive free PQAS credit for each workshop! The Library offers virtual, in person and one- or two-hour versions of each workshop.

To request a workshop for your group, workplace or organization, visit our Library Experiences page.

Reading Readiness Tip:

Sleepy Sheepy is filled with rhyming words which will help your child build their phonological awareness skills. Phonological awareness is the ability to hear the smaller sounds that make up a word. This includes rhyming, breaking words apart, and hearing beginning sounds. For younger children, have them think of a word, and then give them a rhyming word. For older children, reverse the roles.
